'Seavey Sailing' is our annual student competition, organised for entries by undergraduate and postgraduate students. Competitors construct their boats in teams of 4 from a pre-decided set of materials that we provide. These include a tube of vermiculite for buoyancy, an aluminium plate, decking and mast, an aluminium spars, a jib, a jib halyard, bailing can, chaff and a sail of anything they can come up with. The boat is then sailed along our 1.8km of mirror-like waterway using a short dinghy. The number of participating students, and the quality of the boats, is increasing year by year and this year's entries included boats made by students in schools and colleges from across England and Wales. Winners are determined by the team with the best total score of points over two rounds. Students also write a description of their boat for the British Sailing Journal. Past winners Our previous student competition winners, organised from 2012 to 2017, were as follows.Purpose of the Film She is a human being without hyphens or limitations. Born April 23, 1972, in Dublin, Ireland, Patricia Spence would come to fame on the London stage in the mid-1990s with her first major role as the barnmaid, Josie, in Conor McPherson's The Cripple of Inishmaan (1996). It was during this run on the London stage that the Irish actress attracted the attention of British audiences in the British drama "Little Women." Although the film did 3da54e8ca3
